Healthy Schools Hub Connects School Communities With Resources to Boost Student Wellness, Achievement

(Organization Name), in partnership with Healthy Schools, Successful Students and the Colorado Education Initiative, is excited to announce the launch of The Hub (healthyschoolshub.org), a new interactive website focused on health and wellness in elementary and secondary schools. The Hub serves as a resource repository and a collaboration tool for school communities and organizations that support healthy learning environments.

For the past two years, members of HSSS, a visionary group representing state-wide organizations and education systems, have collaborated to understand district and school goals and related needs, gather requirements for how an online tool could meet those needs, and set the wheels in motion to architect The Hub.

Now, The Hub is where people find vetted resources, share ideas, create groups, and learn about events and training opportunities. It's where school communities find information to address their specific health and wellness priorities in support of increased student achievement. The Hub's library covers health education, nutrition, physical activity, safe physical environments, social-emotional support, staff wellness, and more.

Cheryl Miller, President and CEO of RMC Health, is a firm believer in the power of the collective to improve health outcomes for young people. Miller believes the collaborative nature of The Hub will expand the efforts underway in Colorado to implement programs and practices that best meet the needs of a diverse range of student populations.

“Having a community of practitioners from across the state to work with is critical to problem-solving and finding innovative solutions,” Miller said. “The Hub empowers school communities to find the most relevant resources to accelerate their health and wellness efforts. Hub users can find tools and implementation support across the continuum, at any stage in their journey toward creating cultures of health and wellness for young people.”

Moving forward, HSSS members will provide new and updated resources for The Hub, review Hub content submissions from a variety of sources, and continue to connect school communities with tools and resources to create healthy school environments. The Hub is managed by the Colorado Education Initiative.

About Healthy Schools, Successful Students

Healthy Schools, Successful Students (HSSS) is a diverse group of organizations and community partners that focus on physical, mental, and emotional health in Colorado schools. Founded in 2016, our members have worked together to connect school communities with tools and resources to create healthy school environments. HSSS is excited to support The Hub as a platform to promote healthy students and schools. By coordinating efforts across the state, we help all Colorado schools integrate health and wellness into their mission.

About Colorado Education Initiative

For 10 years, Colorado Education Initiative (CEI) has been at the forefront of improvement, innovation, and change in Colorado’s public education system. We are a statewide nonprofit organization that invests time, expertise, and dollars in K-12 public education. We are rooted in a vision of equitable outcomes for every kid that drives a strong bias for action focused on sustainable change to the system. Over the years, we’ve worked with educators as an inspired and supportive partner on the ground in over 150 urban, suburban, and rural school districts.

STORYTELLING

PROMPTS FOR TELLING A STORY

- Where does the story begin? Was there a problem to solve... did you have an idea...were you participating in a collaborative effort?
- Why does the focus of this story resonate with you personally? What compelled you to act?
- How did you determine your goals and desired outcomes?
- What strategies did you choose to achieve your goal... and why?
- Did you adjust your strategies/plans along the way? If so, what prompted the change?
- Who and/or what helped you advance your work?
- Were there any obstacles that you overcame – and did these obstacles reveal any new ways of thinking for you?
- Did you reach your desired outcome, and/or arrive at unintended outcomes?
- What surprised you on this journey?
- Do you have tangible/measurable evidence of the impact your work has had?
- What's next for you and your work?

STORY FORMATS

Written Narrative

- Use the headline and first paragraph to start your story with a question or observation that makes the reader curious to find out what happens. Consider how to use empathy and emotion to connect with readers, describing what you saw, felt, and sensed during your experience.
- Aim for about 1,000 words. Use subheads and bullets to break up long segments of text.

Video

- Consider the most compelling aspect of your story and record a brief narrative or conduct quick interviews to share your experience. Allow the camera to set the scene and script your narrative to describe key takeaways.
- Use Storyvine to quickly conduct interviews. Learn more

- Be sure that students who appear in photos and videos have the appropriate media permission on file with their school or district. A media release is not required for adults when they are filmed in public places, but it is a good rule of thumb (and professional courtesy) to notify them you will be filming and ask if they have any objections.

Photo Essays

- Gather images of people, places and objects that illustrate your journey. Use your smart phone to capture photos with a strong focal point and crop out distracting backgrounds. Consider how close-ups, high or low angles, and lighting can enhance the photo. Write captions or a brief paragraph for each image that capture the progression of the story.
- Use four to six images to share your story, with each capturing a point in time, or progression of the story. Use images that capture where, when, how, and why.
